INFORMATION ON THE SCHEME FOR AGENCIES

Under a prequalification Scheme, service providers are invited through an open Expression of Interest process to be assessed on their resources, capability, experience and systems in their nominated area of expertise.

Agencies with specific projects can request a list of selected capable service providers from whom they can invite proposals.

The benefits to agencies of using the Scheme are:

- Streamlining of the competitive tendering process by prequalifying individuals and suppliers with a demonstrated track record, saving on tendering costs relative to open tenders while maintaining appropriate levels of competition

- Enhancing probity standards by third party assessment and selection of service providers
- Quality assurance and performance management in the engagement of service providers. Poor performing service providers will have their performance monitored and can be suspended or removed from the Scheme.

The use of this prequalification Scheme for Performance and Management Services by agencies is voluntary. Agencies not using the Scheme are to engage consultants in line with the delegations relating to consultants (as specified in the Guidelines for the Engagement and Use of Consultants).

SELECTING PREQUALIFIED PROVIDERS UNDER THE SCHEME

Agencies and statutory corporations seeking to engage service providers under the Scheme may request a list of appropriate prequalified service providers from the Department of Services, Technology & Administration (DSTA), citing the work types and specialties they require for a particular engagement, by submitting a request form to the DSTA.

Submit the request by e-mail to: consultantprequal@services.nsw.gov.au. A list of suitably prequalified service providers will be returned by e-mail to the applicant. Please note, the Department of Services, Technology & Administration will only send a list to 'nsw.gov.au' email addresses.

Agencies may then make their own selection from the list of prequalified service providers provided or may seek further assistance from the Department of Services, Technology & Administration.

THE COMPETITIVE TENDERING PROCESS UNDER THE SCHEME

NSW Government agencies are required to engage consultants in accordance with the Scheme Conditions and the Department of Premier and Cabinet Circular C2004-17: Guidelines for the Engagement and Use of Consultants.

The prequalification Scheme complements these guidelines by providing for engagement of consultants or contractors on the following basis:

- Where the estimated cost of the engagement is less than $150,000, an engagement can be made directly from the panel by inviting one written quotation from pre-qualified service providers.
- Where the estimated cost of the engagement is $150,000 or more (to no limit) an engagement can be made from the panel by inviting a minimum of three written proposals from pre-qualified service providers. Open invitations are not required, when this prequalification Scheme is used.

TERMS OF ENGAGEMENT

The engaging agency and the service provider must enter into a separate agreement for each engagement. The Standard Form of Agreement is provided at Schedule 2 of the Scheme Conditions.

Agencies should not modify the terms of the Standard Form of Agreement.

Performance and Management Services Prequalification Scheme

PERFORMANCE MONITORING AND REPORTING

The purpose of the Scheme is to improve the procurement and use of performance and management services. Quality assurance, value for money, and performance improvement are key objectives of the Scheme.

To assist in meeting these objectives, agencies must provide basic information on consultant engagements by monitoring the performance of service providers they engage.

To assist in meeting these objectives, the Department of Services, Technology & Administration collects the following information from agencies for each engagement:

- the name of the service provider
- the total value of the engagement
- any variations or flow-on engagements
- a brief description of the outcome

Where a prequalified service provider's performance has been considered unsatisfactory, or where the total value of the engagement (and any related flow-on engagements) is $150,000 or more, agencies are required to complete a Performance Report in the form set out at Schedule 3 of the Scheme Conditions.

Further information about performance and reporting requirements is set out in the Scheme Conditions, Schedule 3, Guidelines for Agencies, and Guidelines for Applicants.

Agencies are to liaise with the service provider and attempt to reach an agreement on the rating of each performance criterion in a manner which reflects the service provider's actual performance on the project.

The results of performance monitoring will be linked to the selection for future tendering opportunities. Poor or inconsistent performance may result in decreased opportunities for future work, while good or consistent performance may result in increased opportunities for future work.

These reporting obligations apply in addition to agencies' other reporting and disclosure obligations under the Government Information (Public Access) Act 2009 (GIPA Act), Premier's Memorandum 2007-01 and NSW annual reporting legislation.

OBLIGATIONS AND RESPONSIBILITIES OF AGENCIES ACCESSING THE SCHEME

Agencies are responsible for making their own assessment of a consultant's suitability for a particular engagement and to undertake appropriate due diligence checks according to the size of the engagement and the risks involved.

INFORMATION ON THE SCHEME FOR APPLICANTS (SERVICE PROVIDERS)

The Scheme is open for new applicants throughout the term. Service providers, whether individuals or firms, can apply for prequalification at any time throughout the life of the Scheme. This Prequalification Scheme for Performance and Management Services is for high-level specialist advice and other forms of professional assistance in the areas listed previously.

Service providers benefit from being prequalified through reduced tendering time and costs.

Prequalification under this Scheme is not a guarantee of work and no agency of NSW Government is obliged to provide any work opportunities to any pre-qualified service provider.
